WEDNESDAY, JULY 26, 1899.

Watch the politician who takes the stump to defend a nomination under the style of the Louisville convention. He is a politician only for what is in sight, and not from principle.

It is clear the Democratic press only hope to elect Goebel over the shoulders of Bryan and free silver. This is the burden of their pleadings to not let, to stand by the party, etc. Goebels is ignored, or purposely held in the dark, that the so-called faithful may be hoodwinked by the Bryan and silver press.

Those same Democratic papers which only a few weeks since were praising Major P. P. Johnston, of Lexington, who was then chairman of the state executive committee, are now saying a number of ugly things about him. This great change of opinion has been brought about by the fact that Major Johnston, like many another good Democrat, has seen fit to decline to endorse the actions of the Louisville convention, which were so outrageous as to destroy every fundamental principle of party organization if allowed to prevail. More Major Johnstons would make the Democratic party more formidable a foe than it now is or will be in November, and give the people purer politics than is promised by Goebels.

The truth about those anti-Goebel meetings held Monday in Bowling Green and Winchester show that they were well attended and that they were very enthusiastic in their purpose. Other views are only misleading the credulous.

Canadian statements are taking ugly about the United States, and English statements are apologetic for this talk. The Canadians need a lesson in diplomacy and also in manners, and may get both before they know what struck them.

Oom Paul has resigned as president of the Transvaal. This is one step more for victory by the English. The Transvaal will soon be quite English, don't you know.

The Goebels press is not doing their usual good by trying to frown down or ridicule the movement of the anti-Goebel press. What the Goebels press ought to be doing should be to get the objectionable candidate out of the way, that the party might have a chance to win and not meet certain defeat. The anti-Goebel press is, of course, old, and coming and the Goebels are going to find this out too late.

Anti-Goebel Democrats in Fayette county are going to boom Maj. P. P. Johnston the late chairman of the state central committee, to lead the ticket which will be named to oppose the Kenton Czar. They say Major Johnston would poll an immense vote, as he is popular with a majority of Democrats in the state, who know him for his true worth and would be glad of an opportunity to endorse him and his acts at the polls. Johnston has lately written some damaging letters denouncing the Louisville convention, manner of making nominations.

There is more war talk in the air. This time it comes with Paris that Russia and Japan are striving to fight over Korea. Again there would seem to be a woman in the case.

Says the Elkton Progress: "Win Goebel is being charged with about everything but one thing—being a fool. He could never be convicted on that charge." Well, what about the charge being filed against Goebel's "supporters"? Would they, too, escape conviction?

Marse Henry is still explaining through the columns of the Louisville Courier-Journal. He wires in and out until it's hard to tell what he's about, but nevertheless his earnestness in a lost cause, or rather a cause to be lost, is not without much commendation. Marse Henry would be all right if left alone.

It took eleven and a half columns of the Louisville Dispatch to print the names of the signers to the call for the anti-Goebel meeting held in Louisville last night. And yet the Goebel papers of that city say the movement has no strength.

The Mr. Wm. Sweeney who addressed the Louisville anti-Goebel meeting last night was the defeated candidate for chairman of the Louisville convention and the leader of Mr. Hardin in the contest up to the nomination was made. He is one of the most popular citizens of Marion county and a gentleman of great influence. On the hostings for the independent ticket he would make it warm for the Goebels.

Louisville Commercial: "It is said by reckless Democrats on every hand that William Goebel will be governor of Kentucky without reference to the verdict of the people at the polls. Not with that gallant young man from Butler county fairly entitled to the office by judgment of the people. There is no force among the lawless resources of Goebels that can snatch from a man with the sort of friends William S. Taylor will make in every precinct in this broad commonwealth the prize that he will win in this great campaign! It does not lie within the power of the organized scoundrelism of the state to cheat of the votes cast for this splendid young Kentuckian who will raise up an army of fearless champions in every county where he sets foot! The leadership of the Republican campaign is in safe and strong hands. It is a leadership of confidence and dauntless courage. It is a leadership believing in the absolute justice of its cause and the supreme necessity for its success. Neither the deceit nor the open falsehood nor the outwary of Goebels will prevail against it."

APPELLING PROSPECT.
New York World: A new terror has been added to life by the announcement of a western scientist that if he is properly equipped for the necessary work he can easily increase the span of human existence to a thousand years. He is willing to start an institute for that purpose in Chicago. Andrew Carnegie will put up the $50,000,000 required.

It is impossible to imagine that any one should of his own free act consent to live a thousand years in Chicago, but even if there were any such strangely minded people, what a nuisance they would be if they were allowed to live. Just as we have got through with the last of the veterans who shook hands with George Washington or voted for Andrew Jackson, we do not want to face the prospect of inflicting their descendant.

Oom Paul has resigned as president of the Transvaal. This is one step more for victory by the English. The Transvaal will soon be quite English, don't you know.

The Goebels press is not doing their usual good by trying to frown down or ridicule the movement of the anti-Goebel press. What the Goebels press ought to be doing should be to get the objectionable candidate out of the way, that the party might have a chance to win and not meet certain defeat. The anti-Goebel press is, of course, old, and coming and the Goebels are going to find this out too late.

Johnston has lately written some damaging letters denouncing the Louisville convention, manner of making nominations.

The independent movement in the Democratic ranks is assuming unmistakable form. Hon. John Young Brown, who made the state one of its best Democratic governors, has declared himself a candidate for governor on the independent Democratic ticket and says he is willing to accept such a nomination if it is tendered by the Lexington convention. The Louisville mass meeting of last night endorsed and recommended Mr. Young for the nomination to which he aspires.

The Owen-ton independent convention was captured by the Goebels, just as was the Louisville convention, and run to suit themselves. Which fact is considered as significant of Goebel's strength by his press supporters. The fact remains, however, that there are many opponents to Goebel among the Democrats of Owen county, and the rule or ruin policy of the Goebel gang is made the more manifest. And just here is where the gang is digging its own grave.

The Goebels press is working itself to try to prove that the anti-Goebel meetings are very small affairs.

THE TRUTH Must Be Told Says the Lexington Herald.

This the People Demand and This They Have a Right to Expect.

Lexington Herald: "We have received from Captain Stone this note: 'KITTAWA, Ky., July 18, 1899. "Dear Sir—In receipt of yours of the 14th inst. There is no controversy about the written agreement. No agreement was ever made or suggested between Mr. Goebel and myself until after the county conventions were held. The written agreement was made on the morning of the 21st of June, a short time before the convention met. Yours truly, "W. J. STONE."

And we do this with sincere pleasure. It had been reported that before the primaries were held an agreement was entered into between Mr. Goebel and Captain Stone, under which contests were to be decided by the convention in favor of those gentlemen and against General Hardin. The inevitable effect of an agreement made before the primaries would be to cause unfounded contests. This written agreement has not as yet been made public. It must be, Captain Stone owes it to himself, his friends and to truth to give it to the people. And not only must the agreement be made public but also every fact and circumstance connected with it—how it came to be made, by whom it was negotiated and how it was carried out. Mr. Goebel ought to have made it public immediately upon the charge of Captain Stone that he had played him false and broken his pledged word.

In this connection we republish from The Leader of yesterday the letter of Captain Stone to Major Charlton H. Morgan: "KITTAWA, Ky., July 18, 1899. "Dear Sir—In receipt of yours of the 15th inst. and desire to thank you for it. I might not know you by sight after all these years have gone by, but I know you by sight when I had the honor to follow your gallant brother and your self. And let me say that I feel honored to have the friendship of men like you, and especially of the brother of my old commander, whom I loved so well.

"The statement I made which were published over my signature are true. Mr. Goebel knows them to be true. His pledge to me was made on Friday, June 23, 1899, made you later at an interview sought by Mr. Goebel. Again on Saturday, June 24, 1899, when I demanded that he keep his agreement he said: 'I will do it; wait right here till I walk over to my seat.' He went away and never returned. These are facts. I will stand by them at any cost. "Thanking you again, I am your friend, "W. J. STONE."

This letter and similar statements made and repeated by Captain Stone under the meagre mining detail of Mr. Goebel's insufficient, indeed, if he stands by the denial alone, it convicts him of the charge made by Captain Stone. There is no rule of pleading better settled than the material averments not specifically denied are admitted to be true. Captain Stone specifically charges that on June 21, the morning of the meeting of the convention, he and Mr. Goebel entered into a written agreement, that this was the only written agreement, on Friday, June 23, 1899, an interview was sought by Mr. Goebel, and at that interview another agreement not in writing, but verbally, was made in which it was stipulated by Mr. Goebel that he would have Captain Stone nominated, that on Saturday, the 24th, Captain Stone verbally in a colloquy with Mr. Goebel—demanded the fulfillment of this agreement of the day before and Mr. Goebel distinctly averred that he would do it, and subsequently violated both the agreement and the renewed promise. To these material and direct charges Mr. Goebel responds that he made a written agreement—which was limited to the organization of the convention—that it was publicly known that he refused to consent to withdraw from the convention; that he did not ever promise or agree to withdraw. It will be noticed that Mr. Goebel does not deny that he sought an interview with Mr. Stone on the 23d, or that he had another interview with him on the 24th; he does not deny that at those conversations he used the exact words and phrases charged by Captain Stone; he does not deny that those two interviews his withdrawal was the subject of negotiation and contract. He has entered his appearance and made partial defense at the bar of the tribunal before which Captain Stone has summoned him, and he cannot now plead to the jurisdiction of that tribunal. At present therefore on the present state of the pleadings Mr. Goebel stands as admitting that on the 23d, while the convention was in session, before the temporary organization had been made permanent and before the report of the committee on credentials had been carried, and when therefore it was in the power of Captain Stone and his friends to destroy all hope of his controlling the convention or the machinery of the party, or of receiving the nomination, he sought an interview with Captain Stone in which the subject of the permanent organization and nomination were the objects of negotiation; and that at another interview on the 24th after the permanent organization was completed and the report of the committee on credentials was passed upon and he had control of the convention and of the machinery of the party and a fair chance for the nomination, Captain Stone demanded the fulfillment of his pledge and received a renewed promise. Mr. Goebel can not permit the record to stand thus. If he remains silent under these undisputed statements, no election boards can save him from both overwhelming defeat and permanent ostracism. Mr. Bryan, Captain Blackburn, all the congressmen from Texas, even the Angel Gabriel may speak in every precinct, but in the ears of the auditors will ring these unheeded statements and will so color the eloquence of those auditors that the audience will go home with the query uppermost in their minds: "Can I afford to vote for a nominee who does not dare to deny such charges?"

It is a blunder in Mr. Goebel and his friends that these charges were not fully met immediately. They have not estimated the temper of the people correctly. And today they do not weigh the silent vote of those who will not permit parties to influence them to approve the unexplained charges. And they are also mistaken in their belief that the disapproval of the conduct of Judge Redwine, of the whole safe-disfranchisement of delegates, the intimidation by policemen, the fraud and force used to accomplish the desired end is passing away. The Harrodsburg Democrat expressed the sentiment of many thousands of Democrats when it said there was a point when reached marked the end of partisan approval and the control of conscience. These men are not controlled by the possible effect of Mr. Goebel's election upon the future fortunes of Mr. Goebel, Captain Blackburn, Mr. Bryan or any one else. No, no, however desirable, can't to these—justly combination of those means. And these are the voters who will hold in their hand the fate of Mr. Goebel. And neither their number nor power will be revealed by the protesting meetings. Thousands of these do not attend conventions, do not sign petitions, are not given to public protestation of these political intentions, but they vote.

WITH THE ANTIS.
Major P. P. Johnston Condemns Louisville Convention and Indorses Anti-Goebelsism.

LEXINGTON, Ky., July 26.—Major Johnston was heartily in favor of the anti-Goebel meeting just held at Bowling Green. The following letter responding to an invitation to preside at the Bowling Green and Warren county meeting leaves his position clear: "Lexington Ky., July 21, 1899.—Capt. E. L. Hines, Bowling Green, Ky.: My Dear Sir: I am in sympathy with the purposes of your meeting and regret that I cannot be with you. An endorsement at the coming election of the methods that led to the nominations at Louisville would facilitate them on us. It is better to call a halt now and let it be well understood that fraud and force can find no rewards in the Democratic party. "We cannot afford to approve results brought about by the wholesale disfranchisement of our fellow citizens. The highest interests of our party require that the guilty should be exposed and denounced. If this is done the bosses, time-servers and their deluded followers will soon begin to profess virtue and will not dare again to make open assault on the dignity of Kentucky citizenship. "Let us insist on the rule of the majority, fairly ascertained, and the fullest respect for the rights of the humblest citizen. "P. P. JOHNSTON."

Another letter from Major Johnston which will have much weight with the honest Democracy of Kentucky, is an answer to a letter from W. A. Wickliffe, of Paducah, Ky., who signs himself "An Unknown Adverser." Mr. Wickliffe, in his letter, showed a disposition to hold Major Johnston through his rulings in the Louisville convention, indirectly responsible for the unsatisfactory ticket there named. Answering Mr. Wickliffe, Major Johnston says: "Lexington, Ky., July 19, 1899.—Mr. W. A. Wickliffe, Paducah, Ky.: I did not pursue the course in the Louisville convention that you so strongly disapprove, either with the hope of reward or the fear of punishment. While it is always gratifying to have the approval of good men, we should not abandon our own convictions to secure it. Good men may be wrong, but a man who is false to himself cannot fail to be an object of self-contempt at sea without chart of compass. "The chairman of the state central committee had the power to determine who are entitled to vote for temporary chairman, and exercised it. I knew absolutely that a number of delegates had procured credentials by force or fraud, or both, and was not willing to sit there because, forthwith, my predecessors had done so, and allow that false certificates were true and a lot of highwaymen could with impunity usurp the political rights of honest men. "It was expected that in this unprecedented exercise of power I would turn out or admit delegations for the purpose of nominating the candidate of my choice. The fact that it was done to restore the outraged constituencies as far as possible their stolen franchises, regardless of how it helped or hurt any candidate, was an anomaly beyond the comprehension of the average fellow who fights in political campaigns. "The men who had been disappointed in the expectation that I would unjustly deprive my fellow citizens of their rights for the purpose of giving one man or another a better chance for a nomination, proceeded without delay to commit the very outrages they had apprehended with such a show of honest indignation. "The Democratic party of Kentucky cannot approve and adopt methods by which its name a number of persons have been proclaimed its nominees without abandoning the principles and precedents which have been its pride and glory with all hope of success in the future that is not achieved by force and fraud. Very truly yours, "P. P. JOHNSTON."
